Goals of this talk

- ▶ illustrate the commonalities and differences between ancient language textbooks devised for secondary school and university-level learners
- ▶ highlight the inherent issues of university-level books, esp. for ‘smaller’ languages
- ▶ propose a constituency-driven approach to remedying these issues
- ▶ case study: Classical Armenian

Structure

Ancient language textbooks: commonalities

Ancient language textbooks: differences

Issues: exoticity, constitutional diversity, offer limitations

Proposed solution: integrative constituency-based tailoring

Summary

Ancient language textbooks: commonalities

- ▶ gradual introduction of new grammatical information and lexical items
(thus gradually expanding the learner's ZPD; cf. WASS AND GOLDING 2014, updating VYGOTSKY)
- ▶ morphological, syntactical (, and stylistic) exercises
(always uni- [TL→L1], often bidirectional; other types of problem-based learning, cf. McPARLAND ET AL. 2004)
- ▶ reading exercises adapted to learner competence
(often adapted texts; sometimes adapted w/o apparatus and unadapted with apparatus)
- ▶ etc.

Goal gradually build TL lexicon, grammar, syntactic and stylistic awareness;
ideally introduce elements systematically for later reference
(e.g. by abstracting recurring endings from paradigmatic forms)

Blick in die Zukunft

(Nach Vergil, Aeneis VI 756 – 890)

AENEAS wäre wohl bei DIOO geblieben, hätte nicht JUPITER den Götterboten MERKUR zu ihm gesund um ihn zu seine Bestimmung zu erinnern. DARIUM verließ er heimlich Karthago.

Vergilius Didonem ab Aenea relicta mortem sibi ipsam conscivisse, Aeneam autem navibus in Italiam venisse memoriae prodit.

3 Ibi cum Sibylla vate ad inferos¹ descendit patremque in sedibus beatis de vocabit, et te tua fata docebo.

Videbis illos reges, qui Albæ Longæ regnabunt, qui arces in montibus ponent, Nomentum et Gabios urbemque Fidenam.

Quae tum nomina erunt, nunc sunt sine nomine terrae.

Aeneas mit Sibylle in der Unterwelt (ca. 1600), J. Bouillon d. A., Musée des Beaux-Arts, Brüssel.

Aeneas apud inferos

Vergil lässt Aeneas mit der Sibylle von Cumae in die Unterwelt hinabsteigen. In der Nähe des Averner-Sees bei Neapel betreten sie das Reich Plutos und Proserpina. In der Vorhalle wohnen schreckliche Gespenster wie die Trauer, die Gewissenbisse, die Japsi, die Zwittergötter mit ihren Schlangenhaaren, der Krieg und der Tod. Großen Schrecken jagt dem Aeneas ein hundertarmiger Riese und eine fürchterlich zischende Schlange ein. Doch die Sibylle belehrt ihn, dass das alles nur kienperlose Schatten seien. Weiter führt ihr Weg zum Unterweltsfluss Acheron. Am Ufer drängen sich die Seelen der Verstorbenen um sich von dem grassierenden Fährmann Charon über den Fluss zum Tor der Unterwelt bringen zu lassen, wo Zerberus wacht, der Höllenhund mit drei Köpfen und Nattern am Hals. Die Sibylle betäubt ihn mit drei opiumgetränkten Honigkuchen. Nun müssen Aeneas und seine Führin tröstlose Gegenden durchqueren: Hier wimmern die

Seelen der bei der Geburt gestorbenen Kinder, dort warten die zu Unrecht zum Tod Verurteilten auf ein gerechtes Urteil. Nahe bei ihnen bereuen Selbstmörder ihre Tat und auf den Feldern der Tränen leiden die aus Liebeskummer Gestorbenen. Dort sieht Aeneas auch Dido, die sich aus Kummer über seine Abreise ins Schwert gestürzt hat. Er versucht sie zu trösten, sie aber wendet sich wortlos ab. Als Aeneas all die bei der Schlacht um Troja gefallenen Helden trifft, drängt ihn die Sibylle weiterzugehen. Nun geht sich der Weg Links liegt der von einer dreifachen Mauer und einem Flammenfluss umgebene Tartarus. Die Schreie der dort bestraften Sünder überhören das Tosen des Phas- ses. Rechts geht der Weg zum Elysium, dem Aufenthaltsort der Gerechten und Frommen. Hier endlich trifft Aeneas seinen Vater Anchises, der ihm die Seelen seiner Nachkommen und der künftigen Großen Roms zeigt.

Dicere beatum ante mortem neminem debemus.

Bonus nocet, qui malis parcat.

Ego tu fui, tu ego eris.

Lesson V

The Present and Aorist Stems

So far we have discussed the formation of the present and imperfect indicative which are based on the present stem. This stem, however, is not always identical with the root of the verb. For example: from սէր (love) there is the denominative verb սիրիչ, and such formations are very common in Armenian. But from the root մուտ (entrance, passage) the present stem of the verb 'to enter' is մտնիւմ. Since in the aorist such suffixes as -ում- are dropped, it will be helpful to discuss the more common examples before introducing the aorist.

1. The most common suf. is -ում-; such verbs have -իւմ, -իւմ or -ում as endings.

E.g.	աթլանիւմ	I throw (passive: աթլանիւմ)
	իջանիւմ	I descend
	մեռանիւմ	I die
	սկսանիւմ	I begin
	զարմանում	I am astonished
	ոչանում	I swear

2. Also with a suffix -ում- are the factitives in -ացանիւմ, which is added to the root of the verb (not the present stem):

E.g.	ուսանիւմ	I study, learn (cf. ուսումն study, learning)
	ուսացանիւմ	I teach

3. Suffix -չ or -իւ-; these are all middle in form, with two irregular exceptions:

E.g.	բաշխիւմ	I hide
	փախիւմ	I flee

LESSON V

The corresponding factitives are բաշխցանիւմ, փախցանիւմ. But not all factitives are quite regular:

կորնիւմ	I perish
կորուանիւմ	I destroy

The exceptions are:

մանաչիւմ	I know (a person)
մեղանիւմ	I sin (cf. մեղք sin - plural tantum)

4. Suffix -իւ-: These are all irregular.

E.g.	ստանիւմ	I do, make; aorist: արարի
	ստանում	I receive; aorist: առի
	դնիւմ	I place; aorist: հղի
	զարանում	I turn; aorist: դարձի
	ընթեանում	I read; aorist: ընթեցայ

(for further examples see M §110, 114, 116)

5. Suffix -իւ-: only a few examples, all in the -ում category.

E.g.	մերձանում	I approach (cf. մերձ near)
	բացքանում	I am hungry (cf. բացք hunger)

The Aorist Indicative

The aorist stems are of two types: the so-called "weak" or "first" aorists, which add the suffix -իւ- or -աց- to the root; and the so-called "strong" or "second" aorists, which have no suffix between the verbal root and the aorist endings. In all cases the special suffixes of the present stem (if any) are dropped.

In the aorist indicative there are active and middle forms. As in the -իւ/-իւ groups, some verbs are only found in the middle/passive form. The endings are:

LESSON V

Active

Sing.	Pl.
1. ի	այ
2. եր	էր or իր
3. -	իմ

Passive

Sing.	Pl.
այ	այք
ար	արք
աւ	աւք

Thus for weak and strong aorists we have the following paradigms in the active:

1. սիրիչ*	սիրցայ	քիքի	քիքայ
2. սիրցիք	սիրցէր (or սիրցիք)	քիքիք	քիքէր (or քիքիք)
3. սիրեաց	սիրցիմ	իքիք	քիքիմ

If the 3 sing. active is monosyllabic, an augment h- is added, except where the monosyllable begins with a vowel. So հիքիք but ած (from ածիւ I lead)!. In post-classical Armenian an augment was also added to ած etc., but in the form եւծ (not հւծ).

In the middle/passive the corresponding paradigms are:

1. սիրեցայ	սիրցայք	քիքայ	քիքայք
2. սիրցար	սիրցայք	քիքար	քիքայք
3. սիրեցաւ	սիրցամ	քիքաւ	քիքամ

Rules for the Formation of the Aorist

1-4:	Verbs in	-իւ/-իւ
5-8:	Verbs in	-ում
9-10:	Verbs in	-ում

* The suffix -իւ- changes to -ից- according to rule 5 of Vocalic Alternation.

! the augment is also found in the rare monosyllabic aorists: e.g. դնիւմ-հղի (I place).

Example II: Classical Armenian (Thomson 1989)

LESSON V

E.g. առնում	(I take, receive) առի
շնամում	(I warm myself) շնալ
but ընթերցում	(I read) ընթերցալ
լնում	(I fill) ւցի, 3 ճ. ելից
զարթում	(I awake) զարթալ

(See further M §116.)

In addition to these irregularities, several verbs in Armenian have different roots for the present and aorist stems. The most common such suppletive verbs are:

ռնիմ	(I have) կալալ	(usually: I got hold of, seized, arrested)
գամ	(I come) եկի	see further p. 92
կրքամ	(I go) յալալ	see further p. 92
ըմպիմ	(I drink) արբի	see further p. 92
ուտնմ	(I eat) կերալ	see further p. 92
սամիմ	(I lead) տարալ	see further p. 92
նամուիմ	(I know, recognize) ծանոսալ

* Words whose form is explained in the notes by a reference to a later lesson should merely be learned as items of vocabulary.

LESSON V

Իսկ աշակերտն ելին ի բաղարն ևս գնացին ի Գաղիլիա. Իրբի(4) տեսին զՄ. ևս երկիր զազին վարդապետին, յայն իրկու(10) յաշակերտացն(11) յերկուսացն. ևս խուսկաւ Մ. ըմպ աշակերտում.

Notes

- Note that this verb governs the Dative.
- կալալ is the suppletive aorist of ռնիմ.
- Note use of g + Acc. or a simple Dative.
- իրբի + aorist: "when, after". For other uses see Lesson IV, n.7 and Lesson VI, n.4.
- հանգեր can come before or after the noun.
- յոյծ is indeclinable; it is an adverb (in great amounts) but can be used with nouns.
- Note use of demonstrative suffix.
- On demonstrative adjectives see Lesson VII.
- On միմչու + g see previous lesson, p. 44.
- On numbers see Lesson XIII.
- Note the partitive sense here of ի + Ablative.

Translate into Armenian:

The teacher met the disciples and said: "Where (յն) are you going?" They replied: "Great miracles were revealed to the soldiers by the angels. We are going to see the place where (ուր) the miracles were done and where the angels spoke with (ընդ + locative) the soldiers." The teacher was astonished and went out of the city with the disciples. When they reached the place where the angels had appeared to the soldiers they stood in great awe and believed. But two of the disciples doubted and said: "This report is not true. The soldiers said that they saw miracles because they received money from the priests."

CHAPTER 18

Athematic Verbs I

Athematic Verbs: Formation

The present stems of all verbs encountered so far have had one feature in common: they end in -a. In grammatical terminology, this -a is referred to as the 'thematic' vowel. Compare Class I $\sqrt{\text{car}}$ 'to carry' → $\text{चर-$, Class IV $\sqrt{\text{bhū}}$ 'to be excited' → $\text{भूय-$, Class VI $\sqrt{\text{likh}}$ 'to write' → $\text{लिख-$ and Class X $\sqrt{\text{chur}}$ 'to steal' → $\text{चोरय-$. In addition to these four classes of 'thematic' verbs, there are six classes of 'athematic' verbs. All athematic verbs share two features: As their name suggests, their present stems do not end in the thematic vowel -a. More noticeably:

Athematic verbs all display vowel gradation (or ablaut) of the stem.

- The strong stem, which is used in the active singular forms of present and imperfect and in some imperatives (→ Chapter 24), stands in guna.
- The weak stem, which is basically used everywhere else, stands in zero grade.

These features can be seen in the following example of a Class II verb:

Root	1 st P ₁ (weak)	1 st S ₀ (strong)
$\sqrt{i}$	i-maḥ	e-mi
'to go'	'we go'	'I go'

The 1st P₁ consists of just the stem i- plus the ending -maḥ. In the 1st S₀, the ending -mi is added to the stem e-, which is the guna of the root $\sqrt{i}$.

18

Like thematic verbs, the various athematic verb classes differ in what is added to the root in order to form the present tense stem:

In Class II verbs, endings are added directly to the root. No additional affixes are used.

Example: $\sqrt{gā}$ 'to go': 1st S₀ गमि 'I go', 1st P₁ इमः 'we go'

In Class III verbs, the root is reduplicated (see below on 'Reduplication (Class III verbs)'). No other affixes are added. Example: $\sqrt{yaj}$ 'to sacrifice': 1st S₀ यजहेमि , 1st P₁ यजामः

In the remaining verb classes, the root vowel itself always remains in zero grade, but in each class a different affix is added to the root, and this affix then shows strong and weak forms:

Class V roots add the suffix -no- (strong)/-nu- (weak) after the root.

Example: $\sqrt{āp}$ 'to obtain, get': 1st S₀ आप्नोमि , 1st P₁ आप्नुमः

The -u- of the 1st Du and P₁ may be dropped in verbs whose roots do not end in a consonant. Thus: $\sqrt{āp}$ and आप्नुमः , but from $\sqrt{yaj}$ 'to cover' यजनुषः or यजन्मः and यजनुमः or यजन्मः .

Class VII roots add strong -na-/weak -n- into the verbal root (directly before the root-final consonant).

Example: $\sqrt{r̥h}$ 'to hinder': 1st S₀ रह्नामि (on $n > ṛ$ → Chapter 6), 1st P₁ रहन्मः

Class VIII roots add strong -o-/weak -u- after the root.

Example: $\sqrt{tā}$ 'to stretch': 1st S₀ तनामि , 1st P₁ तनुमः

The -u- of the 1st Du and P₁ may be dropped, giving the alternatives तनुषः or तन्मः and तनुमः or तन्मः . (As most of the few existing Class VIII roots end in -n, they effectively look identical to Class V verbs.)

Class IX roots add the suffix -nā- in the strong forms, -nf- in weak forms whose endings begin with a consonant, and -n- in weak forms whose endings begin with a vowel (i.e. in the 3rd P₁).

Example: $\sqrt{c}$ 'to choose': 1st S₀ चूनामि (on $n > ṛ$ → Chapter 6), 1st P₁ चूनीमः , 3rd P₁ चून्ति

The above contains all the general information concerning athematic verbs. The table below is provided to give more illustrations of the principles outlined so far, and also to show the various patterns of internal sandhi that typically occur. If the amount of new forms confuses you, start by looking at Class V, which in many ways is the most straightforward athematic class.

EXERCISES

1) Identify and translate.

Example: भरामि – 1st Sg (PRES IND ACT) of 'वृ' (Class I) 'to carry' → 'I carry'

- १) जुहोति
- २) बिभीमः
- ३) वेत्ति
- ४) भुञ्ज्मः
- ५) आप्रोमि
- ६) तनोति
- ७) वृक्ष्य
- ८) भिनत्ति
- ९) यन्ति
- १०) पुनासि
- ११) वृणोषि
- १२) विस्तः
- १३) वृणूयः

- १५) आप्रुक्
- १६) पुनीयः
- १७) तनुमः
- १८) भुनज्मि
- १९) बिभेमि
- २०) वृणामि
- २१) शक्नूय
- २२) विद्मः
- २३) एषि
- २४) जुहुतः
- २५) वृणीयः

2) Using verbs from this chapter only, give the form listed in brackets.

Example: 'carry' (3rd Sg PRES IND ACT) → भरति

- a) 'go' (3 Sg)
- b) 'be strong' (3 Pl)
- c) 'fear' (3 Sg)
- d) 'purify' (1 Sg)
- e) 'stretch' (2 Du)

18

- f) 'choose' (3 Sg)
- g) 'sacrifice' (3 Pl)
- h) 'split' (1 Sg)
- i) 'cover' (3 Du)
- j) 'stretch' (2 Sg)
- k) 'choose' (1 Pl)
- l) 'reach' (3 Sg)
- m) 'go' (1 Du)
- n) 'split' (3 Pl)
- o) 'purify' (2 Pl)
- p) 'cover' (1 Sg)
- q) 'sacrifice' (2 Sg)
- r) 'choose' (3 Pl)
- s) 'reach' (2 Pl)
- t) 'fear' (2 Du)

3) Translate into English.

- १) पापाः पुरं द्रष्टुं न शक्नुवन्तीति क्षत्रिया विदन्ति ।
- २) अपि जनैर्द्रष्टुं क्षत्रियं वेत्तीति पृष्ट्वा नरो मिश्रेण सहापैति ।
- ३) पुरमाप्तुं न शक्नुव इति बालौ चिन्तयतः ।
- ४) कन्या गृहमेतुं न शक्नुवन्ति बिभ्यति च ।
- ५) वने व्याघ्रं विदित्वा नरो बिभीतः ।
- ६) पौरा ईश्वरस्य दानानि भुञ्जन्तीति कुमारो वेत्ति ।
- ७) अपि वने वस्तुं भुनक्षीति बाला नरमपृच्छन् ।
- ८) अप्यश्रं भुक्ष्येति बालानपृच्छम् । न भुञ्ज्म इति प्रत्यवदन् । अप्यश्रं भुनक्षीति बालामपृच्छम् ।

Vocalic Alternation

In many cases when the stress shifts from the stressed syllable of a stem to an ending or other element added to the stem, the formerly stressed vowel either drops or is changed. The following rules apply throughout Armenian.

1. ի / zero (or ը)
- | | |
|------------|---------------------------------|
| սիրտ-սրտի | (heart) (hyphenated սրբ-տի) |
| գիր-գրաբան | (writing- the written language) |
| թիւ-թուի | (number) |
| հից-ցի | (he filled - I filled) |

Exceptions:

- a) initial ի before single consonants:
- | | |
|--------|----------------|
| իծ-իծի | (snake) |
| իմ-իմի | (mine - of me) |
- But:
- | | |
|---------|-------------|
| իմի-ըմի | (something) |
| իզի-ըզի | (desire) |
- b) final after single consonants:
- | | |
|-----------|----------|
| ձի-ձիւ | (horse) |
| մի-միաբան | (united) |
- But:
- | | |
|----------|-------------------------------|
| ձիի-ձիւի | (free), for it is dyosyllabic |
|----------|-------------------------------|
- c) the following:
- | | |
|----------------|---|
| հիմն-հիմնի | (foundation) [but սկիզբ-սկզբանի (beginning) etc.] |
| ինքն-ինքնի | (self) |
| հիսիս-հիսիսի | (North) |
| ինչպէս-ինչպիսի | (how - such) |
| հինգ-հինգիսորդ | (five - fifth) |
| | [but հնգից, gen. of հինգ] |
| նիք-նիքի | (sleep - to sleep) |

VOCALIC ALTERNATION

2. ու / zero (or ը)
- | | |
|--------------|-----------------------|
| բազում-բազմի | (many, much) |
| մուտ-մտանմ | (entrance) |
| որում-յորմէ | (to whom - from whom) |

Exceptions:

- a) Initial ու in monosyllables (not merely before single consonants):
- | | |
|------------|------------|
| ուս-ուսոյ | (shoulder) |
| ուխտ-ուխտի | (covenant) |
- [sole exception is
- | | |
|------------|---------|
| ուրշ-ընշոյ | (base)] |
|------------|---------|
- b) when the stressed ու is followed by a semi-syllable:
- | | |
|--------------|--------|
| ուսոր-ուսորի | (son) |
| ունկն-ունկան | (ear) |
| ուկն-ուկան | (neck) |
- c) in hiatus:
- | | |
|--------------|-------|
| ձու-ձուոյ | (egg) |
| մեղու-մեղուի | (bee) |
- [note the curious
- | | |
|---------------|-------------|
| ուրբու-ըրբուի | (step-son)] |
|---------------|-------------|
- d) there are a few irregularities:
- | | |
|----------------|----------|
| հուսկ-հուսկից | (last) |
| բուն-բնոյ | |
| but բունի | (sleep) |
| շուրջ-շրջմ | |
| but շուրջամակի | (around) |

3. է / ի

- | | |
|--------------|------------------------------|
| սէր-սիրոյ | (love) |
| էր-իւի | (he descended - I descended) |
| որպէս-որպիսի | (as, such) |
- Sometimes an alternation է / ի is found:
- | | |
|--------------|--------|
| ապու-ապուստ | (fox) |
| հղէզն-հիւզան | (reed) |

and in names: Նիքոս-Նիքոսի etc. [But there is wide variation in the spelling of proper names.]

Emerging issues

► Exoticity

Learners (may) have a less developed understanding of the culture, history, general background of ‘smaller’ ancient languages studied at university level owing to their temporal and geographic distance to their background

► Constitutional diversity

Learners choose to learn such languages for different reasons and coming from different backgrounds (e.g. linguistics, history, theology, area studies, etc.), and hence have different background knowledge and interests

► Offer limitations

University-level courses covering these facets in ‘smaller’ ancient languages are often more generalist or hyperspecific; language teaching may fall to colleagues from other sub-domains

ex. Armenian: historians, theologians, linguists (in my personal experience)
- ▶ Tailor teaching goals to intersection
language competence is the core for all constituencies; include the necessary, divert the detail
- ▶ Expand the frame of reference include essential historical and cultural information, both as commentary and through text selection
- ▶ Create diversions
include clearly marked additional info section for key constituencies, incl. TL material
- ▶ Assume nothing
in both core and optional sections, do not assume constituency-based foreknowledge; target interest groups; provide a glossary

Integrative constituency-based tailoring

- ▶ Examine constituency

Advantages

- ▶ help foster deep-learning and understanding of underlying and/or concomitant concepts by connecting the necessary with the pleasurable
- ▶ encourage self-regulated learning through different angles/impetus on the same material (cf. CASSIDY 2011; WENGER 1998)
- ▶ allow for the integration of language learning and teaching and current research in various domains, thus increasing student appeal and material retention (cf. GRIFFITHS 2004; LESTON-BANDEIRA 2013; FINK 2013:45)

Summary

- ▶ university-level textbooks for ‘smaller’ ancient languages can learn from their secondary-level ‘mainstream’ counterparts
- ▶ teaching and learning differences in the different contexts, varying provisions, and foreknowledge need to be compensated by targeted tailoring to each language’s core constituencies
- ▶ still, no advanced knowledge of any other discipline must be assumed
- ▶ in doing this, the textbooks become more widely useable for independent and diversely-interested learners
